MANNING SAYS SOUTH CAROLINA OPTIMISTIC.

In an interview with a representative of the Anderson Daily Mail Governor Manning made the following statement:

"There is an atmosphere of optimism and contentment throughout all South Carolina today that is highly gratifying," said Governor Manning in conversation with a representative of The Daily Mail this morning. The governor spent last night at the Chiquola hotel in Anderson and returned to Columbia on the morning train. He was returning from Pendleton, where he spoke yesterday at the centennial meeting of the Pendleton Farmers' Society. "I spent a very pleasant day at Pendleton and was pleased to note the great interest manifested by the people, not only of the Piedmont, but by the State at large, in this society and its meetings. I recall that it was at a meeting of this society that Clemson college was first thought about and now this Pendleton Farmers' society has grown to be one of the greatest institutions for good in our State. Organizations of this kind, when the proper interest is manifested will be of great benefit to the State at large as well as the individual members of the organization," said the governor. "Our people are now riding on a wave of prosperity and this prosperity is brought about very largely by the high price of cotton. We must not allow ourselves to run wild, however, and plant the whole earth in cotton next year. The present prices are, in my opinion, brought about by reason of the small crop this year and if we continue to hold down our cotton acreage and raise our home supplies we will then be in position to live in peace and contentment without regard for the outside world and their wars."

"I am especially gratified to note the growing feeling of brotherly love and personal interest in each other's welfare among the people of South Carolina. Men of every business, trade and profession are getting in closer touch with each other and working together for the upbuilding of our State. The use of the word 'class' is gradually dying away and the expression, 'South Carolinians' is being substituted therefor. We have a great many problems before us, and in order to solve them successfully it is of great importance that we put our shoulders to the wheel and unite our efforts as South Carolinians for the upbuilding of the State we love so well."

What about the enforcement of law in Charleston was asked the governor. "Well, I am continuing the work of the special constables there and expect to continue to use every means at my command to enforce all laws in all South Carolina at all times," said the governor, "and I am convinced that by keeping everlastingly at it great progress is being made. A report received in my office from the dispensary board in Charleston shows that to work under Sheriff Martin have the special constables appointed by me seized and turned over to the dispensary board over $7,300 worth of whiskey, beer and other intoxicants within the past four and half months. The city police during the same period turned over about $800 worth. During the same period in 1914 when the special constables were not working, the police seized and turned over to the dispensary about $700 worth. The recent convictions in the circuit court speak for themselves. Yes, I am sure that there is today a greater respect for law and order in South Carolina and the general public is supporting our peace officers in the performance of their duty."

"I always enjoy my visits to the various parts of the State. It gives me the opportunity to meet the people face to face and discuss with them their problems and needs. I find that the best information I can get for my guidance as the servant of the people is secured by close personal touch with the people themselves. My office is always open to the people of South Carolina and it is my desire for the people to call and discuss with me any matter looking to the upbuilding of the State at all times."

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes Into Sour Bile, Making You Sick and You Lose a Day's Work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramp, gas and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Don't be too keenly critical. The worm has a habit of turning when you least expect it.

"IT COULDN'T BE DONE."

(From The Railway Employees' Magazine.)

Somebody said that it couldn't be done. But he, with a chuckle, replied, That "maybe it couldn't" but he would be the one.

Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried. So he buckled right in, with the trace of a grin. On his face. If he worried, he hid it. He started to sing as he tackled the thing.

That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that."

At least, no one ever has done it." But he took off his coat and he took off his hat.

And the first thing we knew he'd begun it. With the lift of his chin, and a bit of a grin.

Without any doubting or quibbling; He started to sing as he tackled the thing.

That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it can't be done.

There are thousands to prophesy failure;

There are thousands to point out to you, one by one,

The dangers that wait to assail you; But just buckle in with a bit of a grin, Then take off your coat and go to it; Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing.

That "cannot be done," and you'll do it.

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd—

A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,

And you know of a tale whose mere telling would cause his proud head to in anguish be bowed,

It's a pretty good plan to forget it. If you know of a skeleton hidden away

In a closet, and guarded, and kept from the day

In the dark; and whose showing, whose sudden display

Would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay,

It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a thing that will darken the joy

Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy—

That will wipe out a smile, or the least way annoy

A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,

It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

THE TAX COMMISSION.

The following editorial from The Abbeville Press and Banner is of general interest:

In his speech in Greenville, on Saturday last, Ex-Governor Cole L. Blease paid his respect to the Tax Commission of this State. Without recalling just what he said, and the manner in which he said it, we agree with the substance of it. The Tax Commission has been a dead failure so far, and it is to be hoped that the next legislature will have the good sense to repeal the act.

That there are great inequalities in the assessment of property, and unjust burdens carried by some while others in a measure are escaping their share of the taxes, everybody knows. And we believe that every thinking man in the State would like to see the burdens of government properly distributed, and every man carrying his share. For that reason a great many of us welcomed the passage of the present law, and looked for good results.

The men appointed are undoubtedly men of ability. But all of them are politicians, and it sees that they are unable to forget the fact.

Governor Blease says that the acts of the commission are unjust towards the corporations. This is a fact which no man can deny. The corporations already are bearing their share of the taxes—some of them at least are, and especially the banks, and yet the banks are the first taxpayers to receive the attention of the Tax Commission. The truth is that the real estate of the country is the property which is not bearing its just proportion of the taxes, and the personal property of individuals is the property which is bearing practically none of the burdens.

We do not advocate the raising of values on these species of property and not on the corporations, but we do advocate the putting of all property on the tax books on the same basis of assessment, and that no favors be shown either the bank or the individual. Any other system is wrong in principle and will not be approved by a fair-minded people.

We suggest that if the law is not repealed, that the next appointees be men not connected with politics. There is no place on the tax commission for politics.

W. A. STUCKEY TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR.

Columbia, Oct. 16.—"I will not at this time make a positive statement, but there is every probability that I will be in the race for governor next summer," said W. A. Stuckey, of Bishopville, today. "There is a sentiment among the people for a direct representative of the farmer in the race for governor. I am, however, doing nothing to promote that sentiment."

Mr. Stuckey, State senator from Lee county, is a farmer. He was graduated from the University of South Carolina and took a post graduate course at Vanderbilt university.

GOT HIM AT LAST.

Old Eben was walking along the street one morning and one of his arms was in a sling. Mrs. Horton, who had often employed the old fellow for odd jobs, happened to meet him and asked:

"Why Eben, have you met with an accident?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied Eben, "I did. I've done up now, fer sho! You see dis arm in de sling, ma'am, don't you?"

"Yes, Eben," said the woman, sympathetically, "what has happened?"

"Well, ma'am," the old colored man answered, "I'll be 71 years ole nex' harvest. I done see lots ob troubles in my day, ma'am, but by de grace er God I miss de Kuklux an' I miss de Whitecaps, ma'am, an' I miss de vigilance Committee, an' de Regulators, an' now, ma'am, here in my ole dem waxinators kotched me!"—New York Times.
